for Quality and Excellence in Higher Education

Jesais

However North Maharashtra University, changes/ modifies curricular every five years. The curriculum is carried out with reasonable efficiency and with a view to achieve goal set by the institution. For providing quality education, college is doing its level best to synthesize great Indian traditions and the fruits of modernity. The special objectives are achieved mostly through the instructional strategies used for transacting the curriculum.

The college is a degree college which offers traditional B.A. and B.Sc. degree. In Science faculty the Students can select any four subjects from Chemistry, Botany, Mathematics, Physics, Zoology, Geography and computer science at first year level. The college does not have any mechanism to obtain feedback from academic peer and employers on the teaching programmes. As such feed back is important for designing employment based self- finance vocational courses. The college should develop some system to get feed back from academic peers and employers.

The students are admitted in the college on the basis of their academic records as per rules and regulations of the University. While considering application for admission to the college some weightage is given to the students who are good sportspersons. The college has a system of interaction with students to assess their knowledge and skills. The knowledge of students is assessed through periodical classroom tests, question answer sessions, group discussions, performance in the classroom and presentation in the seminars.

The college has adopted a method of evaluation of the teacher's performance by using self-appraisal method. The college obtains feedback regularly from the students about teacher's performance. Teacher is expected to grade himself/herself on the basis of the guidelines given to them by the college. On the basis of the self-appraisal report and student's feedback the principal gives grade to the teachers. Overall performance of the teachers is monitored by the HOD and the principal of the college.
